TELLS OF DAMAGE IN ALL PARTS OF STATE

ANDERSON HARD HIT IN THE JULY STORM

HAIL BEGAN HERE

Observations of the United States Weather Department Tell of Storm Started Here

"The storm was probably the most disastrous South Carolina ever saw," says Richard H. Sullivan, section director for the United States Weather Bureau. Mr. Sullivan makes these remarks about the recent severe storm which originated in Anderson county and spread over the state and his article in the July issue of "Climatological Data," issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, will be read with interest.

"Probably the most extensive series of disastrous thunderstorms and hailstorms that ever visited the plantations of South Carolina occurred in the upper Piedmont of the state on July 6-7, 1914. These disturbances were incident to a moderate barometric depression that appeared off the south Atlantic coast during the night of July 4, and 5, and disappeared over the Gulf of St. Lawrence by the morning of the 9th.

The series of hailstorms appear to have begun in Anderson and Newberry counties; the centers of the disturbances then advanced northward over Laurens and Spartanburg counties and outward over Cherokee county, culminating in extreme violence over an extensive area of York county, estimated at 80 to 100 square miles, of which approximately one half was planted to staple crops. In the latter section the fall of hail continued about one-half hour, while in other portions of the stricken district the time limit ranged from 10 to 20 minutes.

The damage was caused principally by immense quantities of hailstones about the size of an ordinary marble. In Cherokee county there were many stones the size of a genuine guinea egg, while in Spartanburg, some stones as large as goose eggs were reported. It might be well to add, however, that such sizes as the latter are very rare. The writer some years ago was able to obtain some immense hailstones from two violent storms that occurred in another part of the country, and the measurements of the two largest were from 9.25 to 9.50 inches in circumference. Such a stone fell rather loosely, or only here and there in scattered areas and their construction shows much more snow and considerably less ice than those of the smaller round, gnarled types, and the damage is never so great from these as from the smaller sizes which often fall in countless numbers. In York county, in the heavy wash incident to excessive rains, accumulations of hail stones were noted that measured in depth from 2 to 4 feet in some pockets, and many banks of hail or ice were still visible until the late afternoon of the 7th.

"Before reaching the vicinity of greatest destruction, the storm seemed to dip and rise after the manner of a bounding tornado. In Laurens, Spartanburg and Cherokee counties the paths ranged in areas from 1 to 5 miles and 2 by 1 miles to 2 to 8 miles, and in the first named county there were two distinctive hail belts ranging from 2,500 to 3,500 acres in extent. In York county the area ranged from 1-2 to 5 by 25 miles. A broad belt extending from Catawba, S. C. to near Stanley, N. C. The center of maximum energy appears to have been a few miles north of Rock Hill. In this area the losses of 34 planters was estimated at 94 per cent of the planted crops, while in adjoining areas the losses taper off to 9 per cent and thence down to 50 per cent or less in a region approximately 40,000 acres, controlled by 2,000 or more planters.

"Cultivation of damaged fields began as soon as possible after the storm, but where the cotton was well in ear, the plants that had been cut to within a few inches of the ground could not recover. Coming in mid-season, as these storms did, when the staple crops were developing into fruitage, the losses have fallen with special severity on the plantations of the affected areas. And in consequence of the late season they can only resort to fodder corn, cane, millet, peas, beans, vegetables and forage crops that can mature before autumn frosts in order to stay the demands until another growing season returns.

"An average that has been grown from the careful estimates of general losses made by a number of conservative business men, planters and agricultural experts how the following values:
 Cherokee county: $35,000, or about 50 per cent loss on crops of 2,500 acres.
 Laurens county: $150,000, or about 60 per cent to 90 per cent loss on crops of 2,500 acres.
 York county: $730,000, or 30 per cent to 94 per cent on crops of about 20,000 acres, and 90 per cent scaling down to 50 per cent loss or less on about 20,000 acres additional.

The $955,000 approximate losses in the above counties indicated at the close of July, cotton is estimated to comprise 67 per cent; corn 23 per cent; truck and forage, 10 per cent.

ANDERSON PLANTERS GIVEN GOOD ADVICE

W. W. LONG TELLS THEM WHAT TO DO

SAYS SOW GRAIN

In An Open Letter to 50,000 Farmers, South Carolina Expert Outlines Proper Work

The time has now come when the farmers has learned that the experts at Clemson college are not only willing to serve the people, but in the present emergency they are anxious to lend any possible aid. Therefore, Anderson farmers will be quick to take advantage of the information which they will derive from the circular letter sent them from Clemson.

Farmers of Anderson county are advised by W. W. Long, agent in charge of the federal farm demonstration service in this state and director of the extension work of Clemson college, to seed large areas in oats and wheat, building hog pastures and raise hogs, pay special attention to poultry and maintain good kitchen gardens, by way of preparing for the reduction in cotton acreage which next year will bring.

Mr. Long has had printed 50,000 copies of a circular letter which he issued yesterday, embodying this advice; and with these he expects to placard the State from one end to the other.

"Our experts," he said in Columbia yesterday, "are getting out special matter concerning the question of oats, wheat, hogs, poultry and gardening and are calling the attention of the farmers to our readiness to serve them."

The letter issued yesterday by Mr. Long was addressed "To the Farmers of South Carolina," is as follows:

"These are times when you must not let others do the talking. You can not afford to have your farm idle this fall and winter. It is the time when you must use the cold months for hog raising and saving money. Any one who tells you what to expect of cotton for the next year is just guessing. Nobody knows.

"After careful consideration we advise the following courses as profitable for you at this time. Do these things now.
 "To farmers in the Piedmont counties: Seed large areas in oats and wheat. These crops can be made to bring considerable profit in ash or can be turned under next spring. Vegetable matter turned under makes the raw potash in the soil become more available. We will need all the available potash we can get next spring. In the event we use commercial fertilizers we will secure better results.

"To farmers of other parts of the state: Seed oats as a market crop and enough wheat to supply home consumption.
 "On cotton lands these crops can best be seeded with one-horse grain drills, or certain makes of fertilizer distributors can be used to take the place of the drill. They can be used in October following the cotton pickers.

"To all South Carolina farmers: Build hog pastures and raise hogs. Hogs can be put on the market within the next year at a big profit. Don't be afraid of hog cholera. Clemson will furnish serum at cost and a man free of charge to inject it, if you will notify the college as soon as you hear of an outbreak in your community.

"Pay special attention to poultry, which can be made a source of large revenue.
 "Be sure to give attention to a winter garden. Nothing pays a farmer better at this season of the year than a good garden.

"To do the things suggested above will require the least amount of labor and money.

"The nations of war must be fed. We can take advantage of the high prices offered for foodstuffs and turn this period of depression into one of great profit.
 "We have the men who can furnish the information in detail as to how to carry out the above suggestions. are anxious to serve you.
 "Write me at Clemson College, S. C., or call upon any demonstration agent in the State, and he will secure the information for you.
 "The main thing is act now."

ANDERSON MEN WERE PAROLED

W. J. Follard and J. E. Derrick Both Received Clemency at Hand of Governor Blease

Charged with violating the dispensary law, and convicted on that charge at the May term of court of this year, W. J. Follard has received a parole from Governor Blease. Follard was sentenced to serve six months on the charge of 10 pay a fine of $100.

J. E. Derrick, likewise, charged with violating the dispensary law and sentenced to serve six months or to pay a fine of $200, has also been paroled.

Newspaper dispatches a few days ago said that Governor Blease made a statement to the effect that he had pardoned or paroled one man each day since the first primary and continued. "There is no telling what I will do on Thanksgiving."

Cole One Horse Grain Drill, No. 34.

No county in South Carolina has as many intelligent, progressive and scientific farmers as Anderson County. The progress that that county has made furnishes ample evidence of this fact. One of her most wide-awake and successful farmers is Mr. R. P. Earle. Mr. Earle fully appreciates the importance of raising grain and does this, as he does every other kind of farming, in such a way as will insure for him the greatest measure of success. He last year drilled his oats with a

Cole Open Furrow Drill

We give you in his own words what he has to say as to the good results obtained from using this splendid machine.

Anderson, S. C.,
 Sept 3, 1914.

Sullivan Hdw. Company,
 Anderson, S. C.,
 Gentlemen:

Yours to hand.

Will gladly say that the Cole Three-Row Grain Drill is one of the best farm implements I ever saw. For sowing oats between cotton rows it can't be beat; it will work to perfection on fairly smooth land and where there is not too much grass.

It is a great time saver sowing three rows at one trip or a whole middle; it leaves the grain in better furrows than a single Drill as there is no mule and man traversing the rows three times to fill up the furrows, therefore, your grain does not freeze out as bad. It leaves the cotton in much better shape as the Drill and mule are in the center of the middle and do not damage the cotton but very little. With the single Drill, I have had cotton almost worn out going in the middle three times; this damage would amount to enough to pay for what fertilizer the oats would need. The Drill is good to side dress with as it can be adjusted to fit any width rows and do the job in half the time of a single Distributor.

I threshed two thousand bushels from my hired hand crop and about one thousand from croppers' crops, so I have oats to sell.

I gladly recommend the Drill to all good farmers.

Yours very truly,
 (Signed) P. R. EARLE.

CITY WILL RENT THE ABATTOIR

Closed Contract With R. D. Henderson and Will Pay Rent of $50 Per Month For Plant

Maybe the abattoir problem, which has perplexed the Anderson city council for several moons, has at last been settled. A meeting was held yesterday morning in the city hall, beginning at 10 o'clock, at which time it is hoped that an agreement satisfactory to all parties will be closed.

Members of the abattoir committee R. D. Henderson, who owns the place, members of the board of health, and other interested parties, including the butchers of the city gathered yesterday morning for a meeting and they discussed the affair from "A to Z" holding a meeting until 1 o'clock.

Finally an agreement was drawn up by which council agrees to lease the plant for a space of 6 months and not to exceed that time for a consideration of $50 per month. The proprietor of the place agrees, under the terms of the contract to furnish as much hot and cold water as the inspector requires and to allow the city to make necessary repairs from time to time and deduct same from the rent. All refuse is to be delivered at the tank house and disposed of by Mr. Henderson.

It is understood that the new contract is to go into effect on Sept. 14, and that the city will assume charge Monday.

SECRETARIES TO HOLD MEETING

Commercial Men Will Gather in Capital Next Monday to Consider Situation and Remedies

Porter A. Whaley will probably go from Anderson to Columbia next Monday to attend a meeting of all the commercial secretaries in the State. If Mr. Whaley cannot make the trip it is probable that some other member of the Anderson chamber of commerce will go in his stead. Mr. Whaley yesterday received a letter from A. V. Snell of Charleston in which Mr. Snell stressed the importance of the meeting and urged that Mr. Whaley make every effort to attend.

Albert S. Johnstone, secretary of the chamber of commerce of Greenville, and president of the Commercial secretaries' association of South Carolina, last night issued a formal call to the secretaries of the various clubs to meet with him in Columbia Monday, September 14, to discuss the cotton situation. Such cities or towns that do not have a commercial club are asked to be represented through their mayor.

The official call follows:
 "To the commercial secretaries of South Carolina:
 "The present cotton market situation demands the best thought and action of all the constructive bodies throughout the state. A conference of the secretaries of the chambers of commerce of the state would foster concerted action by these bodies. Therefore, such action by these bodies therefore such a meeting is hereby called to convene at the Commercial chamber of commerce, at noon on Monday, September 14. Every commercial body is earnestly requested to be represented."
 (Signed)

"ALBERT S. JOHNSTONE,
 President of the South Carolina Commercial Secretaries' Association.
 This, it is believed, will be a valuable and far reaching meeting. In fact no better plan could have been devised, in the opinion of the leading business men of the city who have heard of the call. It is believed that the best business men of the state will meet with the secretaries, and that all can leave for home after the meeting, with a concentrated plan of action which will undoubtedly be of vast benefit to the state.

Attention toward getting the preliminary affairs in shape for this show. Discussing the matter yesterday, one chicken fender said that it was a mystery to him why some such organization had not been perfected long ago and he believes that the scheme will prove feasible.
